Part-A : Reading Test

Read the passage carefully and answer the questions following it.

Thousands of people in Bangladesh are suffering from arsenic poisonings and more are being affected everyday. Arsenicosis is caused by drinking tubewell water containing arsenic. People who drink uncontaminated water do not catch arsenicosis from affected people. The main recommendation for the people who are affected by arsenic is to drink water from a source that contains no arsenic.

The effects of arsenicosis are less severe among people who eat a healthy, balanced diet, ideally containing fish and vegetables. This is an initial treatment for arsenicosis and may be part of the reason why the number of arsenicosis patients in Bangladesh is still relatively low. It is believed that vitamins A, C and E are effective for treatment of arsenicosis.

Poisoning by arsenic is a slow process. It is due to a gradual build-up of the poison in the human body. Eventually people start to show symptoms and become unwell. Deaths due to long-term poisoning make it even more important to address the problem as soon as possible. This is in effect a race against time to safe water for everyone. Many people currently drinking arsenic contaminated groundwater may develop problems soon. They must attempt to find safe source of water.

The majority of the tubewells in Bangladesh are free from arsenic, but they need to be tested to separate the safe from the unsafe and, in many areas, this has not yet been done. Tubewells, which have been tested for arsenic, should be painted green if they are safe or red if they are unsafe. Deep tubewells are free from arsenic and bacteria although they will need testing in the future to ensure that it is still the case. Surface water in ponds and rivers is a potential source of arsenic-free water. However, most surface water in Bangladesh is heavily polluted with dangerous bacteria. No surface water should be used without some form of treatment.

1. Choose the best answer from the alternatives. $1 \times 5 = 5$

- Arsenicosis is — .
 - the effect of arsenic poison in the human body
 - poisoning caused by drinking tube-well water
 - a highly poisonous chemical
 - the name of an infectious disease

Part-A : Reading Test

Read the passage carefully and answer the questions following it.

Strategy is an appropriate word to use for your approach to the examination on the day. It has been said that about 50 per cent of your chances of success relate to your examination skill rather than to your subject knowledge.

So check and double-check your exam dates and times. Check what you are allowed and what you are not allowed to take in with you and have these ready the day before. Budget your time. Do not waste time elaborating adequate answers if you ought to be moving to the next question. Always attempt to answer all the questions.

Follow the instructions. It is a good idea to double-check this before the exam. Read through the whole question paper before starting to write. Take each question as you come to it and think how you might cope with it. Then move on to the next question and do the same again. By the time you get to the last question, you will have found the questions easier than they seemed at first glance. Spend at least five minutes per question thinking about and planning your answer. This is never a waste of time.

Underline the key words in the questions, that indicate what you are required to do. Again, it is useful half way through writing the answer, to check back that you are doing what you should. Make your answer legible. You can't change your

it to heart but did not get very upset

12. Rearrange the following sentences according to sequence and rewrite them in a paragraph. $1 \times 10 = 10$

- As each pebble went down, the water in the jar rose up little by little.
- It flew from one place to another in search of water and at last found a jar in a garden.
- Then it decided to fly away in despair.
- The crow tried to turn the jar over and over again but it had no effect.
- Then it dropped the pebbles into the jar.
- A crow was very thirsty and wanted to drink water.
- There was some water in the jar but it was too low down and out of its reach.
- As it was leaving the jar, it noticed a heap of pebbles nearby.
- It hit upon a plan then and took some pebbles.
- When the water came to the mouth of the jar, the crow drank it.

Part-A. Reading Test

Read the passage carefully and answer the questions following it.

"When I was at medical college only 20% of the students were women," says Dr Nafiza, a gynaecologist talking about how things were during her early years. But now I can see that the percentage wavers between 40% and 50%. This is a clear indication that now more than ever women are entering the medical profession. "Mind you these women are here because of their merit" she emphasizes. "In the highly competitive world of the medical profession over the years you can see that there has been a remarkable and notable increase in the participation and performance of women. Due to the nature of the profession there is less discrimination faced by women. The new generation doctors are more assertive, freer and open-minded than we were at that age. They are professional and most of them are quite career-oriented", comments Dr Nafiza. She however points out that there is still some lacking in the overall training of young doctors. "Earlier it was essential for doctors to go abroad for their post graduate degree in order to get a better exposure and acquire a more professional, cultural orientation in dealing with patients. But nowadays due to access to such postgraduate degrees here in Bangladesh many women opt for a degree in Bangladesh rather than leave their families and go abroad. This limits their perception and vision about how treatment of patients should be, especially, in case of humane patient dealing." As there are no such specialised training opportunities in Bangladesh, she believes that it is essential to know what is happening around the world.

Her advice to the new generation of young women doctors is : "Keep up-to-date with knowledge regarding technology and research. And if you can, try and go to international seminars and keep abreast of new treatment methods in the hospitals abroad. Try to make sure you keep pace with the rest of the world".

1. Choose the best answer from the alternatives. $1 \times 5 = 5$

Part A : Reading Test

Read the passage carefully and answer the questions following it.

One day Meena and her parrot, Mithu, climbed a tall tree to pick a mango. She picked the mango and took it to her mother. Although Meena had picked the mango, her mother gave the larger share of the fruit to Raju. Meena felt very disappointed. At dinner, Meena noticed that Raju as usual had got an egg but she did not. Mithu was not pleased to see that. Mother wanted to see if the children had washed their hands before they started eating. While they were outside washing their hands, Mithu divided the egg into two and put half of it on Meena's plate. Coming back, Raju was upset to see that half of his egg had gone. Grandma thought that Raju as a boy child needed more food but Meena's father disagreed. He said that Meena needed just as much food as Raju. Raju thought that he had worked harder than Meena and so he deserved more food. Next morning Meena told Mithu to wake up Raju as he had to light the fire. Raju found out that it was not easy to light the fire. The room filled with smoke. Mithu started to laugh. When Raju tried to sweep the floor, the dust flew all over the place. He found that it was difficult to sweep as well! Meena took Lalli, the cow, out to the field to graze. Meanwhile, the hungry chickens jumped all over Raju. Meena had fun in the field. She played with a kite while Lalli grazed. Meanwhile, Raju was finding it hard to do Meena's work. The neighbours were surprised to see Raju, not Meena, collecting water. Part A : Reading Test

Read the passage carefully and answer the questions following it.

In mid-15th century, a Muslim colony was founded in the inhospitable mangrove forest of the Sundarbans near the seacoast in Bagerhat district by a saint Ulugh Khan Jahan. He was the earliest torchbearer of Islam in the South who laid the nucleus of an affluent city during the reign of Sultan Nasiruddin Mahmud Shah (1442-59), then known as 'Khalifatabad' (present Bagerhat). Khan Jahan adorned his city with numerous mosques, tanks, roads and public buildings. The most spectacular of which is the imposing multidomed mosque in Bangladesh, known as the Shat Gambuj Masjid. The stately fabric of the monument stands on the eastern bank of a vast sweet-water tank, clustered around by the heavy foliage of a low-lying countryside characteristic of a seacoast landscape.

The mosque is roofed over with 77 squat domes, including 7 chauchala or four-sided domes in the middle row. The vast prayer hall is provided with 11 arched doorways on east and 7 each on north and south for ventilation and light. It has 7 longitudinal aisles and 11 deep bays by a forest of slender stones columns. From these columns spring rows of endless arches, supporting the domes. The arches are six feet in thickness, have slightly tapering hollow and round walls. The interior and the exterior of the mosque give a view of rather plain architecture but the interior western wall of the mosque was beautifully decorated with terracotta flowers and foliage. Besides being used as a prayer hall the mosque was also used as the court of Khan Jahan Ali. Now it is one of the greatest tourist attractions and best architectural beauties of Bangladesh.
